Always Learning

This week marked our first “Late Start Wednesday” schedule. The Castle Rock team met to discuss a number of important items, but perhaps the most important part of our meeting was the commitment that each and every one of us made to continue to refine our craft and transform the educational experience for all learners through collaboration and innovation. We discussed and have committed to developing a framework for best teaching practices and are committed to strengthening our knowledge of professional learning communities to aid us on our journey to great instruction the first time. Way to go team!

Back to School Night

We had a large turnout yesterday for back to school night. Parents were excited to tour the campus and meet their child’s new teacher. The students were elated at the chance to get to introduce their parents to their teachers and talk about all the cool stuff going on in their classrooms. We had a great time last night. Thanks to all who helped make the event such a success.

S.T.E.A.M. snapshot

“This week students worked in teams of two to design and build a miniature table using craft sticks, straws, clothespins, and index cards to hold a piece of fruit. Armed with a limited amount of tape and rubber bands, each team had twenty-five minutes to construct the table, test it for stability and endurance, then redesign the table to be the tallest one in class. Teamwork and design communication played a key role in this lesson. “ - Mrs. Wade
